

QR brooch for Ra Present, 35 years Galerie Ra

To commemorate Galerie Ra's 35th jubilee, Gijs Bakker created a unique brooch, Virtual Multiple. The solid 18k gold brooch, which has been produced using 3D modeling and rapid prototyping, depicts a QR code generated to direct the user to a specified web URL. The brooch is kept in a purpose built box that distorts the code until it is purchased. Only then can it be removed from the box allowing the owner to scan the QR code using a smart phone application. Thus the owner of the brooch creates a virtual multiple by allowing the code to be scanned by others.

HAN Gallery Press release

Building on the success of Yii Design's cultivation of traditional craft in the contemporary context, the original team behind the project will move to an entrepreneurial platform to carry on their research. This new venture will explore a wider scope of the exciting possibilities that lie in the rich cultural traditions of China.

The vessel for this new mission is HAN Gallery. "Han" is a distinct Chinese character referring to one of the oldest dynasties in China, and is associated with a period of knowledge-production and wealth. It also encompasses the Chinese culture and history as a whole.

One of the pieces for HAN Gallery is the 'Red Chair; designed by Pili Wu. The chair is made of natural beechwood and is finished with 20 layers of Chinese lacquer.
